DYE SUBLIMATION

Dye Sublimation is a process for printing designed themes by injecting colour and imagination into fabric. Chances are you have already got, or seen, sublimated fabrics. Industries such as sports, events and fashion rely heavily on this particular style.

Not creative? That's okay! It's easy to approach trained professionals who will use their expertise to get your unique design out of your head and into fabric. Alternatively, jump online and try design your own dye sublimated apparel at www.aussiepacific.com.au, then take your design to a professional and we will custom make your garment for a minimum of only 10 pieces. Sounds pretty easy, right?

With Dye Sublimation (referred to as Dye Sub) the graphics are computer generated and transferred by printing to dye sublimated paper using specialised inks which are then transferred through heat and pressure into the fabric to give you a unique piece of clothing with the image or pattern embedded forever.

The image can be all over from seam to seam, will not fade, crack or fall off. These garments are made in our China factory using the latest technology dye sub printers and heat presses.

Dye Sub can only be done successfully on 100% Polyester fabrics which especially suits the Aussie Pacific fabrics.

This process ensures that the graphics are permanent (never losing any detail or vibrancy), whilst the moisture removal and anti-bacterial properties of the garment remain unchanged.

Dye Sublimated sports uniforms and apparel are popular as you can uniquely have any logo designs, patterns, numbers, names or sponsors printed onto your garments permanently using a fantastic range of colours and artistic techniques.

Depending on individual client needs, we have a variety of different fabrics at our disposal to create the perfect sports uniform, promotional gear, corporate wear or retail garment.

COST EFFECTIVE SMALL RANGE LARGE POTENTIAL

Aussie Pacific launches AP Promo... the new cost effective Dye Sub label

Using the latest 4 head technology, Aussie Pacific offers unrivalled value added dye sub garments constructed to the high quality you expect from the Aussie Pacific brand. We have several fabric options available for this new Dye Sub range including the new 165gm micromesh, a new waffle fabric and a new interlock fabric, all in 100% polyester. You can choose any short sleeve polo/tee or standard singlet from the DYO Design Lab or you can create something unique to suit your image. As Australasians, we know the value Australians and New Zealanders get from their sports, events and promotional activities so we've introduced this new label to build on that. As a bonus, with this truly outstanding product we offer either the new Express 4 week delivery or standard sea freight.

PREMIUM HIGH PERFORMANCE WHEN QUALITY COUNTS 6 COLOUR HIGH RES DYE SUB CHOICE OF FABRICS

Using specialised imported inks and paper, AP Sport is classified as The Aussie Pacific Premium Dye Sub 'Black Label'. Vibrant and crisp colours on performance fabrics are manufactured into the same high quality garments you already know and use. The AP Sport range of garments is extensive covering both on and off field apparel. The entire range uses the DriWear™ moisture wicking anti-bacterial yarn with the most popular fabric being the highly durable and robust Mini-Waffle Knit. The AP Sport colours have been duplicated to match the huge range of stock fabrics to ensure your club, team or business is colour co-ordinated. You can also choose the sea freight or Express option for AP Sport.

When you want the best, expect nothing less...

What you need to know before sending artwork.

1. Provide a high resolution file

Vector File (line art) is the most common file as it is easy to manipulate and make variations if necessary. For images a Hi Resolution file with a minimum of 300DPI. Explanation for Vector and Raster Files are outlined below

JPEG @ 200%

VECTOR @ 200%

2. Create all text to outlines

With numerous text font styles available and to ensure we print the correct style to suit your needs it is best to create text to outlines.

Proxima font

Converted to outlines

3. Choose your colourway

We use PMS (Pantone Matching System) colours as a guide only. For colour matching we strongly suggest purchasing a sample.

TYPICAL FILE FORMATS:

.AI, .CDR, .PDF*, .EPS*

NOTE: .EPS AND .PDF FILES CAN BE BOTH VECTOR OR BITMAP DEPENDING ON WHERE AND HOW THE IMAGE WAS CREATED.

Vector = fonts/logos and graphics

The most common programs used to design vector graphics are Adobe Illustrator and Corel Draw. Most designers when designing your logos and graphics for printing will use a line vector program especially if fonts and shapes are involved. The great thing with vector files is they can be scaled to any size without losing sharpness.

RASTER

TYPICAL FILE FORMATS:

.JPEG/.JPG, .TIFF, .PSD,

Raster (bitmap) = photographs

A Raster (or Bitmap) image is made up of tiny square dots (pixel) of colour when grouped together form a rastered image. Raster Images are the most common images found on your computer and on the web. The resolution (measurement of pixels) is kept as low as possible for viewing on a computer screen or device.

PROJECT THE

Aussie Pacific garment designers have taken into account the many different methods of decorating or monogramming apparel. Here we look at the three main methods of decoration yet there are others such as Digitally Printed transfers and Screen Printed transfers.

Your Brand should be synonymous with a quality garment, so it makes sense to want to control the way your Brand is portrayed.

Today, any decoration goes on anything, a far change from the not too distant days where a small chest print or embroidery was the norm. Splash prints, tone on tone, print/emb. combos, badges, over seam printing and foiling in abstract patterns and fonts making the opposites attract.

SCREEN-PRINTING

To understand the time and care that is taken into each silk screen printed job, we thought it would be helpful to indicate what happens each time a job is printed.

The first step is artwork. Once the artwork is finalised, it gets sent for processing. From there, and from your printing instructions, your printer will come up with a composite proof for you so you can see what your design will look like on the tees (or polos sweatshirts or other garments). This will confirm the specific print locations you have instructed to print. After the art has been approved, then film is output to make the screens. All of the art is then pre-registered and checked for detail and quality.

The first step in the screen department is to coat the screens with a photosensitive emulsion. Next, the screen dries, and it is placed on the vacuum light table and exposed to a 3000 watt metal halide light. After being exposed the screens are then washed out with a pressure washer at around 1300 psi. Once the image is washed out, it is double checked with the films for accuracy. Each colour in a design needs a screen and each screen must be blocked, taped, setup, and squeegeed.

Just imagine if we had to do this each time a t-shirt was ordered. You can see why screen printing was designed to print quality in bulk. For larger runs with more colours, an automatic machine with 10-18 heads is more practical. By "flashing" or drying the ink between each colour layer, a bright, professional quality print, with years of wear and tear is achievable.

MACHINE EMBROIDERY

A term that describes a specially designed, computerised, embroidery or sewing-embroidery machine to automatically create a design from a pre-made pattern that is input into the machine. In 1980, the first computer graphics embroidery design system was introduced, running on a mini-computer. Technology was enhanced in 1982 with the introduction of the first multi-user system that allowed more than one person to be working on a different part of the embroidery process, vastly streamlining production times. Computerised machine embroidery has rapidly grown in popularity since the late 1990s.

Design Files or 'Masters' are typically downloaded to a computer and then transferred to an embroidery machine which can then be used to stitch out the embroidery designs.

SUBLIMATION

The basic dye sublimation process uses special heat-sensitive dyes to print graphics and text onto special transfer paper. The paper is then placed on a 100% polyester item and both are placed into a heat press. When the heating cycle is completed, the image on the paper has been transferred to the item and has actually reformed into or underneath the coated surface. Sublimation is always done on a polyester, polymer, or polymer-coated item. At high temperatures, the solid dye converts into a gas without ever becoming a liquid. The same high temperature opens the pores of the polymer and allows the gas to enter. When the temperature drops, the pores close and the gas reverts to a solid state. It has now become a part of the polymer. This is why dye sublimation can't be done on natural materials, such as 100% cotton. Natural fibres and non-coated materials have no "pores" to open.

A dye impregnates colour into (not on to) a material and this colour change is permanent. Sublimation refers to changes from the solid, to the gaseous state without becoming liquid. A polymer consists of large molecules made up of a linked series of repeated simple molecules. Dye sublimation refers to solid dye particles that are changed into gas using heat and pressure, which then bond with any polymers present and change back into a solid. This means the composition of the polymer has changed, and no fading, cracking or peeling should occur because the colour is now part of the fabric.

The fluid stored in the inkjet cartridge is the carrier of the dye. The carrier stays on the paper and only the dye migrates from the paper to the substrate. The dye has little or no colour until heated, so what you see on the paper usually looks nothing like the final transferred image. Dark materials cannot be used with the sublimation process on made up garments.

Garments decorated with a dye sublimation transfer cannot be removed like images on shirts decorated with screen printing. It is important to remember that this is not ink sitting on top of the fabric, but rather dye that penetrates the fibre of the fabric. The dye particles are designed to bond with polyester, and ignore everything else.

CORPORATE RESPONSIBILITY

AUSSIE PACIFIC TAKES AND CONSIDERS THE ISSUE OF SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY VERY SERIOUSLY

Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) is a form of corporate self regulation integrated into a business model. CSR is also known as corporate conscience, social performance or sustainable responsible business.

Aussie Pacific offers innovative products and services while conserving, protecting and enhancing resources. To do this, Aussie Pacific's CSR Policy functions as a built in self-regulating mechanism to monitor and ensure an active compliance within the spirit of the law and also ethical standards.

The goal of the Aussie Pacific CSR is to embrace and enhance responsibility for the company's actions and to encourage a positive impact through our activities on the environment, our consumers, our employee communities, our stakeholders and our valued clients.

CSR is a non-binding principle that has received status in relation to both private and corporate sectors particularly in relation to workers conditions and the use of under age or child labour.

Our objective is to provide a set of requirements that when effectively implemented provides full confidence that we consistently provide goods and services that meet your ethical needs and quality expectations and comply with all necessary regulations both in China and Australia.

Our Shanghai factory in China falls under the ISO (ISO:9001) umbrella which is an international standard that gives requirement for an organisation's quality management system.

Aussie Pacific does this in a well managed and well run factory that also makes some of the large well known labels you probably already own. There is no forced, under age or child labour used in the manufacture of these retail quality garments. Workers rights and entitlements are also at the fore front as you would expect because Aussie Pacific is an Australian owned and operated company with co-ownership of the factory.

PMS colour guide

AUSSIE PACIFIC'S COLOUR GUIDE CAN HELP YOU WITH YOUR COLOUR NEEDS.

We dye our fabrics to best match the international colour pallet referred to as PMS. The Pantone® Matching System (PMS) is a standardised colour matching system that utilises the Pantone® numbering system for identifying colours in both textile dyes and inks.

By standardising these colours, different manufacturers in different locations or even countries can all reference a Pantone® numbered colour, making sure colours match.

The most commonly referenced colours are in the Pantone® solids palette.

The Pantone® Solid palette consists of 1,114 colours, identified by three or four digit numbers, followed by a C, U, or M suffix.

Originally designed for the graphics industry, the Pantone® solids palette is now used by a wide range of industries, and is the most commonly used palette.

For example, Pantone 199 Red can be identified as Pantone 199C (C= Coated Paper), Pantone 199U (U= Uncoated Paper) or Pantone 199M (M=Matte Paper).

So, when you say Red you could mean any number of shades.

Every good Screen Print Company uses an ink mixing system that corresponds with the Pantone® Matching System (PMS).

Despite the exact nature of Pantone® colours, what you see is not always what you get when screen printing on textiles and PMS 'Fan' Books come in coated and uncoated versions.

Textiles do not come in coated and uncoated versions so C (or coated colours) are the best match for screen printing. Standard plastisol screen print ink has little shine by nature and more closely resembles the look of the coated PMS Colours.

Screen printing on dark garments requires an underbase so the true colour of the ink can be seen vibrantly because without an underbase the ink colours are absorbed by the garment.

An underbase is a layer of white ink before the design colours are printed and some lighter garments can be printed with no underbase depending on the colour of the garment and the ink colour.

HOW TO measure

STEP 1

choose your favourite fitting shirt and grab a tape measure or ruler.

TIP: don't use a polo, tee or singlet to measure with because they stretch more than a woven shirt does.

STEP 2

lay it down on a flat surface with the arms extended and smooth it flat.

TIP: make sure no-one is wearing it.

STEP 3

measure down 2.5cm

from where the arm is sewn onto the body, give yourself a 'mark'.

TIP: don't use a pen or marker, just make a light indentation in the fabric with your fingernail.

STEP 4

half chest measurement

Use this 'mark' you have just made and then measure across the front of the shirt from seam to seam.

TIP: only measure the front, that's why it's called a half chest measurement.

STEP 5

refer to sizing tables in this catalogue or Online www.aussiepacific.com.au to match your half chest measurement to the Sizing Table.

TIP: do the measure up more than once in case you misread the numbers.

STEP 6

compare and consider

If your half chest measurement is 59cm then go to the shirt style you are considering and determine where 59 sits on the size chart.

TIP: If you come in at 59cm, then consider going to an L at 60.5cm

PLEATED FRONT

mens PANT

STYLE: 1801

Sizes 72R-127R

Pleated pants have a more classic look and a comfortable fit. Pleats are creases on the front of the pants where the material is folded and sewed before it is attached to the waistband. The pleated pants are worn on the waist, just above your hip bone, which means pleated pants have a higher rise making them more generous in the middle. They will give you more freedom of movement and you will feel more comfortable.
